To the Trade

As pioneers in the matter of Hardware Catalogues and after more than forty three years of personal active service in the Hardware business with all the wonderful changes in this branch of Commerce, that have been wrought in the last half century, I may be pardoned for expressing my great pride in this, our latest and most complete volume. It is, I am sure, to the Hardware dealer the most valuable book ever published. I commend it to your most careful thorough and painstaking examination, confident that you will find it so comprehensive and satisfactory, that you will need no other Hardware Catalogue in your daily business.

Permit me to make here a suggestion based upon a life time's experience in Hardware. My careful observation leads me to believe that the average retail Hardware dealer makes two serious mistakes in the conduct of his business.

1st He does not keep a sufficiently large assortment of goods - his variety is not great enough: where there are two or three Hardware stores in a place, the stocks, substantially speaking, are duplicates of each other. The Hardware business is one of many little items. The success of Department stores is largely by reason of the great variety of goods to be found under one roof - not prices - not quality - not merit as to the goods themselves, but largely a matter of great variety in one place. Why not follow this general principle in the Hardware line and keep what people want when they want it - not tomorrow - not to have it coming, or to be "glad to get it for you" but today, when they ask for it. If a large variety helps the Department store why would it help you?—

This is perhaps the most frequent mistake made by the retail Hardware merchant

The Second is not paying enough attention to quality - the tendency, to buy and sell something cheap - it is far better for you to use your best efforts at all times to persuade your customers to buy good goods - knowing that they are the cheapest in the end.
Don't let your customer buy a so-called - cheap thing when by a little tact you can sell him a real good thing that will be, to him, entirely satisfying and pay you a trifle better profit

My motto through life has been

"The recollection of quality remains Long after the price is forgotten"

Better sell a man a good hatchet, with a handle that will never come off, for 75¢ than a cheap one at 40¢
The better one is much the cheaper in the long run will give your customer satisfaction and bring him back to you for other goods. as I have retired from business I have presumed to offer, to the trade, these few words of advice, not forgetting that advice is but little welcome and seldom followed

Very Respectfully Yours
S. C. Simmons

MAIL ORDERS.

The increase of Mail Orders in our Wholesale Business has enabled us to adopt an Improved System for handling them.

We are shipping Mail Orders more promptly and completely than ever before.

Our systems are such that we make uniform prices.

They will be priced with the same low prices as made by the salesmen.

We invite a continuance of and an increase in your Mail Orders.

We are in better shape than ever before to take care of your Mail Orders.

We have advantages not possessed by others.

It is to the advantage of every merchant to buy from a firm that carries the greatest variety and the most complete stock.

We want to handle your business the way you want it handled.

The successful merchant of to-day buys in small quantities, but keeps his stock well assorted by sending Mail Orders.

We supply our customers with the following catalogues :

The best demonstration we can give of the satisfaction of our Mail Order Department is the fact that the sales are constantly increasing.

We cordially invite correspondence.

It is our desire to know wherein we can improve our system.

Will consider it a favor if any customer will call to our attention any changes that may be advantageous to them.

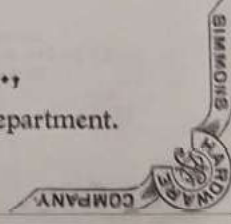

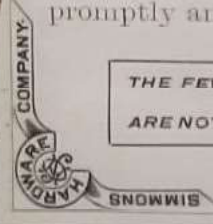

We feel that a better understanding between us will be of benefit.
